COMMIS'RS.

The deciding run of the game was not made until the ninth, and this was obtained when two were out. After Hooks had been retired, Edmonston to Burbanks, and Hoyle had struck out, Willie Handiboe connected with one of Edmonston's shoots, and sent it over the bank for a home run. It was by far the hardest hit ball of the game. The fielding feature was the work of Hoyle, in center, for the Commissioners He made several pretty catches, the ost difficult being a one-handed nab of Hume's swat in the fifth inning.

The Dumbartons began a bunting game and Wahler was erratic in field ing the dumped hits. Had the club-men stuck to these tactics, it is prob-able that they would have won, but when they tried to knock Wahler's shoots to all corners of the lot they Judge Nicol is one of the fairest and most fearless judges on the Virginta bench as well as one of the ablest. When he sustained the objections of Hill's attorneys at Alexandria, two weeks ago he stated frankly at the time he had hoped and fully expected the case would be tried that day, but that under the circumstances he felt compelled to sustain the objections.

The annual regatta of the Analostan Boat Club was held yesterday evening in front of the clubhouse, at the foot of Twenty-sixth Street and New Hampshire Avenue northwest. The feature event of the day was the race between the junior eight of the Analostan and the mixed crew of the Potomacs in a mile race, as this race was to determine whether or not the Analostan juniors were good enough to contend for first prize at the People's regatta, in Philadelphia, on July 4. The memoers. The Potomac Boat Club t, composed of the select men of organization, won by only two ths. The Potomac crew this sea-is estimated to be faster than that ast year, which was second in the die States regatta, and the Anann juniors are thougat to have a nee to finish either one, two, or in the races in the Quaker City.

The junior eights of both the Analostans and the Potomacs expect to contest in the People's regatta, and on this account the junior crews of each club, which will participate at the Quaker City on Independence Day were not permitted to meet, as the vanquished crew would not enter the race. Thus the mixed eight of the Potomacs was pitted against the Analostan freshmen. Junior for Philadelphia.
